SEALED INDICTMENT

22 Cr.

22 CRIM 138

COUNT ONE
(Conspiracy to Commit Commodities Fraud)

The Grand Jury charges:

Overview of the Scheme

1. In or about December 2017, NEIL PHILLIPS, the defendant, and others engaged in a scheme to artificially manipulate the United States dollar ("USD")/South African rand ("ZAR") exchange rate. PHILLIPS manipulated and sought to manipulate the USD/ZAR exchange rate in order to fraudulently trigger a payment under a barrier options contract into which his hedge fund had entered. Under this barrier options contract, PHILLIPS' hedge fund and a client of PHILLIPS' hedge fund were, collectively, entitled to a $20 million payment if the USD/ZAR exchange rate fell below a particular level at any time on or before a particular date.

2. On December 26, 2017 ("Boxing Day 2017"), NEIL PHILLIPS, the defendant, engaged in foreign currency exchange spot transactions in which PHILLIPS' hedge fund exchanged hundreds of millions of USD in return for ZAR. PHILLIPS engaged in these USD/ZAR spot transactions for the purpose of intentionally and artificially driving the USD/ZAR exchange rate below the threshold level set by the barrier options contract in order to trigger the $20 million payment and defraud the counterparties to the options contract.

Relevant Individuals and Entities

3. At all times relevant to this Indictment, NEIL PHILLIPS, the defendant, was the co-founder and co-Chief Investment Officer of a hedge fund based in the United Kingdom ("Hedge Fund-1").

4. Hedge Fund-1 was a global "macro" hedge fund that focused on macroeconomic trends and emerging markets, and on the foreign exchange markets and currency and commodity products. NEIL PHILLIPS, the defendant, co-founded Hedge Fund-1 in or about 2015. At all times relevant to this Indictment, Hedge Fund-1 was registered as a commodity pool operator with the Commodity Futures Trading Commission (the "CFTC") and PHILLIPS was registered with the CFTC as associated with Hedge Fund-1.

Relevant Background and Terminology

5. The foreign currency exchange ("FX") market is a global market in which participants trade currencies in pairs. In a currency pair, each currency is valued relative to the other. The ratio that expresses the value of one currency in relation to the other is commonly referred to as the "exchange rate" or the "rate."

6. The USD/ZAR is one such currency pair. An exchange rate of 12.50 USD/ZAR would thus reflect that a party could sell one USD in return for 12.50 ZAR.

7. There is no single, official marketplace for FX transactions. Customers trade directly with FX dealer banks. Several of these banks are global banks that are able to exchange many of the world's currencies, in large amounts, upon a customer's request.

8. FX "spot" trades involve one party agreeing to receive a particular currency in exchange for delivering a different currency, at an agreed-upon price and quantity. The actual exchange of the currencies (i.e. the trade "settlement") in connection with these FX spot transactions typically take place two business days after the parties agree on the terms of the transaction.

9. A substantial portion of FX spot transactions involving the USD, including the USD/ZAR currency pair, are settled through a third-party settlement bank that is headquartered in Manhattan, New York (the "Settlement Bank"). The Settlement Bank maintains a matching and settlement system for member institutions engaged in FX transactions. At all times relevant to this Indictment, the Settlement Bank settled FX transactions in approximately 18 currencies, including the USD and the ZAR. The Settlement Bank conducted multilateral netting of all of its member institutions' transactions in all 18 currencies on a daily basis. With respect to the USD, the multilateral netting process occurred multiple times per day. Following this multilateral netting process, the Settlement Bank calculated whether its member institutions either owed USD or were entitled to receive USD. The USD portion of all FX transactions settled by the Settlement Bank flowed in and out of bank accounts held at the Federal Reserve Bank of New York.

The $20 Million One Touch Option

10. On or about October 30, 2017, Hedge Fund-1 purchased a "one touch" digital barrier option for the USD/ZAR currency pair with a notional value of $20 million, a barrier rate of 12.50, and an expiration date of January 2, 2018 (the "$20 Million One Touch Option"). Under the terms of the $20 Million One Touch Option, in the event that the USD/ZAR exchange rate went below 12.50 at any point prior to on or about January 2, 2018, Hedge Fund-1 would be entitled to a $20 million payment.

11. Hedge Fund-1 purchased the $20 Million One Touch Option through a financial services firm ("Intermediary Firm-1") that facilitates trades on behalf of underlying clients.

Intermediary Firm-1 permits its underlying clients to maintain anonymity in such transactions. The party that was ultimately obligated to pay $20 million in the event the $20 Million One Touch Option was triggered was a subsidiary of a bank headquartered in Manhattan, New York ("Bank-1"). Hedge Fund-1 and Bank-1 were not aware of the identity of their respective counterparties to the $20 Million One Touch Option contract.

12. Hedge Fund-1 subsequently allocated the notional value of the $20 Million One Touch Option such that Hedge Fund-1 would receive $15,660,000 and a fund that was a client of Hedge Fund-1 ("Client Fund-1") would receive the remaining $4,340,000 in the event that the $20 Million One Touch Option was triggered.

13. A bank that is headquartered in Manhattan, New York ("Bank-2"), acted as Hedge Fund-1's prime broker in connection with the $20 Million One Touch Option. After Hedge Fund-1 entered into the $20 Million One Touch Option, Bank-2 provided Hedge Fund-1 with a letter agreement that set forth the terms and conditions of the transaction. This letter agreement stated, among other things, that Hedge Fund-1 would be "acting in good faith and in a commercially reasonable manner" as the "Calculation Agent" in connection with the $20 Million One Touch Option and that Hedge Fund-1's "determinations and calculations" would be "binding in the absence of manifest error." The letter agreement incorporated by reference the "2005 Barrier Option Supplement" published by the International Swaps and Derivatives Association, Inc. The 2005 Barrier Option Supplement stated, among other things, that the "Barrier Determination Agent" is "the party who determines whether or not a Barrier Event has occurred and provides notice if it determines that a Barrier Event has occurred" and that the "Barrier Determination Agent shall be the Calculation Agent" unless otherwise specified. The 2005 Barrier Option Supplement further stated that the "occurrence of a Barrier Event shall be determined in good faith and in a commercially reasonable manner by the Barrier Determination Agent."

The Events Leading Up To Boxing Day 2017

14. On or about October 30, 2017, the date that Hedge Fund-1 purchased the $20 Million One Touch Option, the USD/ZAR exchange rate was over 14.00. Between early November 2017 through on or about December 15, 2017, the USD/ZAR exchange rate fluctuated between approximately 14.50 and approximately 13.15.

15. December 16 and December 17, 2017, fell on a weekend. On or about Monday, December 18, 2017, following the announcement that a particular candidate ("Candidate-1") had been elected as president of the African National Congress political party in South Africa, the USD/ZAR exchange rate lowered substantially, dropping to as low as approximately 12.52. But the USD/ZAR exchange rate did not fall lower than 12.50 on or about December 18, 2017, and thus Hedge Fund-1's $20 Million One Touch Option was not triggered.

16. Between on or about December 19, 2017, and on or about December 24, 2017, the USD/ZAR exchange rate did not fall below 12.50, and, accordingly, Hedge Fund-1's $20 Million One Touch Option was not triggered.

PHILLIPS Intentionally Manipulates the USD/ZAR Rate
on Boxing Day 2017

17. With the $20 Million One Touch Option set to expire in a matter of days, on Boxing Day 2017, NEIL PHILLIPS, the defendant, engaged in a scheme to intentionally and artificially manipulate the USD/ZAR exchange rate to drive the rate below 12.50 and trigger payment under the $20 Million One Touch Option. PHILLIPS caused and sought to cause the USD/ZAR exchange rate to fall below 12.50 by engaging in FX spot trades in which he caused hundreds of millions of USD to be exchanged for ZAR. PHILLIPS engaged in this USD/ZAR FX spot trading for the express purpose of artificially driving the USD/ZAR rate below 12.50. In particular, by selling a large volume of USD in return for ZAR in a short period of time, PHILLIPS created an artificial demand for the ZAR, which had the impact of strengthening the ZAR against the USD (i.e. as demand for ZAR increased the ZAR became more expensive). This strengthening of the ZAR against the USD meant that the exchange rate lowered (i.e. a seller of USD would receive less ZAR in return because the ZAR had now become more expensive).

18. Between shortly before midnight London time on December 25, 2017 (Christmas day) and approximately 12:45 a.m. London time on December 26, 2017 (Boxing Day), NEIL PHILLIPS, the defendant, directed a Singapore-based employee ("CC-1") of a bank ("Bank-3") to sell, on behalf of Hedge Fund-1, a total of approximately $725 million USD in exchange for ZAR.<sup>1</sup> PHILLIPS explicitly stated to CC-1 that his goal in conducting these USD/ZAR FX spot trades was to drive down the USD/ZAR exchange rate below 12.50. During the course of that approximately one-hour period, PHILLIPS, through his trading, caused the USD/ZAR rate to fall substantially in this short period of time until the rate went just below 12.50. As soon as PHILLIPS had achieved his objective and the USD/ZAR exchange rate fell below

<sup>1</sup>Bank-3 was acting as a dealer bank in connection with these FX spot transactions and was acting at the direction of PHILLIPS and Hedge Fund-1, who were the customer. PHILLIPS provided Bank-3 with orders and then Bank-3 sought out counterparties in the market in order to exchange USD for ZAR.

12.50 due to PHILLIPS' manipulative spot trading activity, PHILLIPS immediately directed that CC-1 cease trading.

19. NEIL PHILLIPS, the defendant, instructed CC-1 to conduct this USD/ZAR FX spot trading through Bloomberg chat messages. At the time PHILLIPS sent these chat messages, PHILLIPS was located in South Africa and CC-1 was located in Singapore. Other employees of Hedge Fund-1 and Bank-3 were also participants in the Bloomberg chat room in which PHILLIPS instructed CC-1 to conduct the USD/ZAR FX spot trading. These other participants in the Bloomberg chat room included, among others, a Hedge Fund-1 employee based in London ("CC-2"), a Hedge Fund-1 employee that worked in Manhattan, New York, and employees of Bank-3 based in Manhattan.

20. In the Bloomberg chat messages between NEIL PHILLIPS, the defendant, and CC-1, PHILLIPS explicitly directed CC-1 to continue selling until the USD/ZAR rate fell below 12.50 and expressly stated that PHILLIPS' purpose in directing these USD/ZAR spot trades was to drive the USD/ZAR rate below 12.50. For example:

a. At approximately 12:09 a.m. London time on December 26, 2017, PHILLIPS stated, in substance and in part, "my aim is to trade thru 50." CC-1 responded, "Ok sure."

b. At approximately 12:16 a.m. London time on December 26, 2017, PHILLIPS stated, in substance and in part, "Need to get it thru 50."

c. At approximately 12:19 a.m. London time on December 26, 2017, PHILLIPS asked CC-1, in substance and in part, "How much liquidity do u think between now and 50." CC-1 responded, in substance and in part, "we are the only sellers in the market, we've sold about 100 [million USD] and it's moved about 5 big figures . . . . but I imagine there is much more depth on the bid the closer we get to 12.50."<sup>2</sup>

d. At approximately 12:25 a.m. London time on December 26, 2017, PHILLIPS again stated, in substance and in part, "Need it to trade thru 50. 4990 is fine."

e. At approximately 12:27 a.m. London time on December 26, 2017, PHILLIPS, after instructing CC-1 to sell another 100 million USD for ZAR, stated, in substance and in part, "Get it thru."

f. At approximately 12:31 a.m. London time on December 26, 2017, CC-1 informed PHILLIPS, in substance and in part, that Bank-3 had sold 415 million USD in exchange for ZAR

at PHILLIPS' direction thus far and that the lowest exchange rate the USD/ZAR had hit for the day was 12.5050. PHILLIPS responded by asking, in substance and in part, "[h]ow much more u think to break 50." CC-1 responded, in substance and in part, "if it's 100 bux [100 million USD] every 25 pips then at least another 200."<sup>3</sup>

g. At approximately 12:42 a.m. London time on December 26, 2017, PHILLIPS instructed CC-1, in substance and in part, to sell an additional 100 million USD in exchange for ZAR and stated, in substance and in part, "try to get it thru now," referring to driving the USD/ZAR exchange rate below 12.50. CC-1 stated in response, in substance and in part, "i will let you know as soon as we sell any below the figure."

h. At approximately 12:44 a.m. London time on December 26, 2017, CC-1 told PHILLIPS, in substance and in part, "we just sold at 4990." Approximately one minute later CC-1 stated, in substance and in part, "We are finishing now, will be 725 mio [million USD] all day." PHILLIPS responded, in substance and in part at approximately 12:45 a.m. London time, "Pls. [please] get me prof [proof] of the print. And stip [sic] stop," referring to the fact that CC-1 should cease trading immediately.

i. At approximately 12:47 a.m. London time on December 26, 2017, PHILLIPS asked CC-1, "where is it now." CC-1 responded, in substance and in part that a particular pricing service was "showing 12.4975 as the low" and asked "[t]hat's sufficient yeah?" PHILLIPS responded, in substance and in part, "Perfect."

j. PHILLIPS thereafter instructed CC-1 to confirm the details of the trade with PHILLIPS' Hedge Fund-1 employee, CC-2. CC-2 and CC-1 thereafter briefly corresponded in the Bloomberg chat room regarding the details surrounding the USD/ZAR trade.

21. Following completion of the above-described spot trade, CC-1 sent NEIL PHILLIPS, the defendant, and others a trade summary reflecting that Hedge Fund-1 had sold in total approximately 725 million USD in exchange for approximately 9,070,902,750 ZAR.

22. On or about December 26, 2017, in the hours that followed the completion of the above-described USD/ZAR FX spot trading directed by NEIL PHILLIPS, the defendant, the USD/ZAR exchange rate once again increased and returned to levels above the 12.50 barrier rate and did not go below the rate of 12.50 for the remainder of the day.

PHILLIPS Causes the Fraudulent Triggering of the $20 Million One Touch Option

23. Only five minutes after NEIL PHILLIPS, the defendant, caused the USD/ZAR FX spot rate to fall below 12.50, at approximately 12:52 a.m. London time on December 26, 2017, PHILLIPS instructed CC-2 in a Bloomberg chat message, in substance and in part, to notify Intermediary Firm-1 that the $20 Million One Touch Option had been triggered. Consistent with PHILLIPS' directive, CC-2 thereafter contacted an employee of Intermediary Firm-1 to confirm that the $20 Million One Touch Option had been triggered. CC-2's email to the employee of Intermediary Firm-1 omitted the fact that the triggering event - the USD/ZAR exchange rate falling below 12.50 - had occurred as a result of the manipulation of the USD/ZAR exchange rate by PHILLIPS. The employee of Intermediary Firm-1 thereafter confirmed to CC-2 that the $20 Million One Touch Option had been triggered.

24. Bank-2, which was serving as Hedge Fund-1's prime broker in connection with the $20 Million One Touch Option and with whom Hedge Fund-1 had executed the relevant letter agreement governing the transaction, required confirmation from both the executing broker and from Hedge Fund-1 that the $20 Million One Touch Option had, in fact, been triggered. In this regard, on or about December 27, 2017, an employee of Hedge Fund-1 notified Bank-2, in substance and in part, that "[t]he below option level of 12.50 was hit yesterday" and sought to process payment in connection with the triggering of the $20 Million One Touch Option. This representation by Hedge Fund-1 to Bank-2 that the $20 Million One Touch Option had been triggered omitted the fact that the triggering event - the USD/ZAR exchange rate falling below 12.50 - had occurred as a result of the manipulation of the USD/ZAR exchange rate by NEIL PHILLIPS, the defendant.

25. The manipulation of the USD/ZAR rate on or about December 26, 2017, caused by NEIL PHILLIPS, the defendant, accordingly, resulted in the $20 Million One Touch Option being triggered, thereby defrauding the parties to the $20 Million One Touch Option and causing Hedge Fund-1 and Client Fund-1 to receive a payment pursuant to the terms of the $20 Million One Touch Option. In particular, on or about December 27, 2017, Bank-1, in connection with the $20 Million One Touch Option, sent a wire transfer of $20 million to a bank account controlled by a financial institution that was acting as Intermediary Firm-1's broker in connection with the transaction, which wire passed through Manhattan, New York, as a result of the triggering of the $20 Million One Touch Option. On or about December 28, 2017, Bank-2, which was acting as Hedge Fund-1's prime broker, sent a wire transfer of $15,660,000 to a bank account held by Hedge Fund-1, which wire passed through Manhattan, New York. On or about December 28, 2017, Bank-2 also sent a wire transfer of $4,340,000 to a bank account held by Client Fund-1, which wire passed through Manhattan, New York.

The Settlement of the Boxing Day USD/ZAR FX Spot Trades

26. The USD/ZAR spot trades directed by NEIL PHILLIPS, the defendant, through Bank-3 on December 26, 2017, Boxing Day 2017, were settled through the Settlement Bank on or about December 28, 2017. In particular, on or about December 26, 2017, Bank-3 and Bank-2, which was acting as Hedge Fund-1's prime broker in connection with the trade, communicated settlement instructions relating to this USD/ZAR spot trade to the Settlement Bank, which were received by the Settlement Bank in, among other locations, the United States. On or about December 28, 2017, after the Settlement Bank netted out all FX transactions conducted by Bank-3 and Bank-2 across all 18 currencies settled by the Settlement Bank, Bank-3 transferred funds in USD into bank accounts held at the Federal Reserve Bank of New York, and the Settlement Bank transferred funds from bank accounts held at the Federal Reserve Bank of New York in USD to Bank-2.

PHILLIPS's Statements to Hedge Fund-1 Investors

27. In or about January 2018, Hedge Fund-1 sent a communication to Hedge Fund-1 investors, which was signed by NEIL PHILLIPS, the defendant, and his co-founder. This communication to investors stated, in substance and in part, the following:

The stand-out performance within EM [emerging markets] during December was, however, unrelated to broader market trends and, instead, reflected idiosyncratic political news in South Africa.

We had anticipated the potential for large swings in South African assets around the ANC [the African National Congress] electoral conference and, in particular, believed that the market had priced in too little risk of a [Candidate-1] victory. This judgment proved to be correct with the market subsequently coming to terms with the scope for a more positive policy dynamic than seen in South Africa for a long time.

28. Hedge Fund-1's communication to investors in or about January 2018 further reflected a positive 6 percent return for the month of December 2017.

29. Hedge Fund-1's January 2018 communication to investors, while touting Hedge Fund-1's predictions with respect to South African political events and touting its returns for the month of December 2017, did not disclose to investors that NEIL PHILLIPS, the defendant, had intentionally and artificially manipulated the USD/ZAR exchange rate, nor did it disclose that PHILLIPS' rate manipulation had caused Hedge Fund-1 to receive a payment under the $20 Million One Touch Option.

Statutory Allegations

c. On or about December 26, 2017, PHILLIPS sent Bloomberg chat messages to CC-2, which messages passed through the Southern District of New York, instructing CC-2, in substance and in part, to inform Intermediary Firm-1 that the $20 Million One Touch Option had been triggered.

d. On or about December 26, 2017, as directed by PHILLIPS, CC-2 sent an email to an employee of Intermediary Firm-1 in which CC-2 informed the employee of Intermediary Firm-1 that the $20 Million One Touch Option had been triggered, while not disclosing that the triggering event - the USD/ZAR exchange rate falling below 12.50 - had occurred as a result of the manipulation of the USD/ZAR exchange rate by PHILLIPS.

e. In connection with the triggering of the $20 Million One Touch Option, PHILLIPS and others caused Bank-1, on or about December 27, 2017, to send a wire transfer of $20 million, which wire passed through Manhattan, New York.

f. In connection with the triggering of the $20 Million One Touch Option, PHILLIPS and others caused Bank-2, on or about December 28, 2017, to send a wire transfer of $15,660,000 to a bank account held by Hedge Fund-1, which wire passed through Manhattan, New York.

g. In connection with the triggering of the $20 Million One Touch Option, PHILLIPS and others caused Bank-2, on or about December 28, 2017, to send a wire transfer of $4,340,000 to a bank account held by Client Fund-1, which wire passed through Manhattan, New York.

h. In connection with the USD/ZAR spot trading that occurred at PHILLIPS' direction on or about December 25 and 26, 2017, PHILLIPS and others caused Bank-2 and Bank-3, on or about December 26, 2017, to transmit settlement instructions to the Settlement Bank relating to settlement of these USD/ZAR spot trades.

i. In connection with the USD/ZAR spot trading that occurred at PHILLIPS' direction on or about December 25 and 26, 2017, PHILLIPS and others caused the Settlement Bank, on or about December 28, 2017, to settle these USD/ZAR spot trades, and the USD portion of these FX transactions flowed in and out of bank accounts held at the Federal Reserve Bank of New York.
